IN MEMORIAM

Charles S. Grant
To the memory of Charles S. Grant

Teacher who moved us to know, value and strive to use our best abilities,

Historian who revealed to us the meaning of our past and its role in our present,

Friend whose congeniality quickened our every response to experience,

Man, courageous and dynamic, firm in conviction, whose spirit will continue to provide an enduring example of the creative possibilities of life,

We dedicate this book
“I have a mind myself, and recognize
Mind where I meet with it in any guise.
No one can know how glad I am to find
On any sheet the least display of mind.”

HUMANITIES

The spoken and written word; rhythm, harmony, and melody; the artist's forms and colors; these are the elements through which man expresses his inner thoughts and feelings. Religion, philosophy, literature, drama and art represent the individual's personal interpretation of his experience as a human being.

An accumulation of centuries of thought since human minds and tongues came into existence, the humanities are not limited to only those people with the magic titles of "philosopher," "artist," or "prophet," but are created and shared by all men. Besides revealing our relationship with the past, they are now and will continue to be our vital concern.

Especially in a world in which the actual and the ideal appear to be gradually moving further apart, the humanities provide a stable foundation through which man can find a steadying influence in his uncertainty and a release from the superficialities of modern life.

Language is power; with it, each man can enlarge his knowledge of his own self. Differences between society and self are heightened to fearful intensity by the modern world’s Tower of Babel state, and language has become a weapon, for resolution of differences is achieved by whoever communicates his ideas most effectively.

A language is not just acquired. It is also understood. A whole new realm of thought unveils itself with the mastery of another tongue. Through language, the very essence of a nation and its culture may be perceived, and an understanding of people and their distinct characteristics may be discerned.

At Middlebury an excellent opportunity exists to master language through classroom work and through practice in language houses, laboratories, clubs, summer schools, and years abroad.

Language is ever-changing and dynamic. After winding his way through the intricacies of a foreign idiom, a student discovers he can scarcely unravel the intricacies of his own. Language is revolution and evolution.

The Economics Department condenses its major, and Sociology increases the minimum number of credit hours. History begins to look beyond Europe and America, toward Asia and Africa. Political Science, focusing the discrepancy between "ought" and "is," offers two separate courses in International Politics: "Theory" and "Practice." The Psychology Department reports a new animal laboratory in the Social Science building. Teacher Training, having received a large four-year grant from the Ford Foundation in 1960, uses part of it to build a library of one thousand up-to-date publications and buy other useful materials. The Middlebury-Cornwall Project experiments with specialized teaching on the elementary school level.

The dynamism of the Social Sciences at Middlebury serves to point up the larger dynamism of the Social Sciences as a whole. Political Science and Economics, History, Psychology, Anthropology and Sociology — all deal with the intellectual and physical movement and change among men.

The Social Sciences alter in approach and content as men alter and are altered by their societies. Yet they also attempt to shape the ways in which we may turn, to work toward a more decent life for men on this earth, whether there is really an eternal human progress or not.

The expanding role of the scientist in modern society requires from the educated individual an increased understanding and appreciation of the natural sciences. Science, like the arts, has as its substructure a comprehension of fundamental relationships. Interlocking patterns of atoms and molecules of cells and tissues are governed by principles of order in the same way that patterns of notes and phrases in music and of line, form, and color in painting are governed.

The sciences may be called the "precise arts" since they are characterized by an insistence upon perfect clarity and exactitude. The unadorned logic of mathematics is, to the scientific mind, the essence of beauty. The dependence of the scientific ideal upon precision of thought, however, does not preclude imagination. A blending of originality, imagination, and skill is required for the successful accomplishment of experimental research.

An acquaintance with the disciplined brilliance required of the scientific mind, and of the place of individual concepts in the ordered structure of scientific knowledge, should make the student aware of the aesthetic values in scientific thought.

Disorganization! Inefficiency! The new Student Association — formed by a merger of MUA and WUA last spring — is striving to do away with these by co-ordinating student activities on campus so as to eliminate wasteful overlapping.

SA has also been working on the foundations of an honor system for all Pre-A's and exams. The group hopes to put the system on a trial basis in 1962-1963.

The New Frontier of the SA includes one elected representative each from the ten fraternities, independent men, women's dormitories and all freshman dormitories.

Under the new system the Judicial Councils maintain their traditional responsibility of carrying out and enforcing student law.

Changeless is the drive to excel. The performance of some is intermittently sparked by impressive feats. But in others, excellence is constant, shaped by the demands of a certain purpose or ambition.

The roster of Phi Beta Kappa contains the names of more men and women who have maintained a high level of achievement throughout their lifetimes than does that of any other organization.

Somewhere above the momentary excitement of being honored is a continual standard of excellence. Phi Beta Kappa recognizes that quality in certain people and encourages them to fulfill their promise.
Blue Key, whose top members make up a governing board known as Waubansee, and Mortar Board attempt to recognize and honor individuals who are considered especially well-rounded, or outstanding. Since some of these terms are intensely subjective — even contradictory — ones, the Mortar Board-Blue Key image is superimposed from year to year upon individuals who may have little or nothing in common. "What do Mortar Board and Blue Key mean?" becomes an unanswerable question.

What Mortar Board and Blue Key do is, perhaps, more obvious. In addition to their traditional roles in Freshman orientation, Mortar Board and Blue Key have expanded their activities. Besides sponsoring lectures, Mortar Board has aided Senior women in investigating job and graduate school opportunities. Blue Key has augmented its program by sponsoring informal lectures on current issues.

SEPC is a vital channel of communication between students and faculty members. It conveys student reactions and suggestions regarding Middlebury's educational policies to the faculty. In 1961-1962 the SEPC discussions covered such diverse areas as: possible reasons for student transfers, the role of extracurricular activities on campus, and the definition of the campus intellectual climate.

WOMEN'S

Community plotting

Betty Bly, President
The word "forum" holds within it the connotation of centeredness; Women's Forum attempts to apply this principle by being the center of good town-gown relations. Forum celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary in 1961. With its 160 members and 23 committees, working under the supervision of the director of the Community House, the group is better than ever filling its multiple community roles.

Perhaps the greatest emphasis is placed on the children of Middlebury, with Forum girls working in such varied activities as Scouts and Brownies, arts and crafts, Halloween and Christmas parties, and dance classes. A new committee has been created to entertain very young children every Saturday afternoon with a "Story Hour" at the public Library.

Forum does more than fill up the spare hours of Middlebury's youngest generation. Its Thrift Shop provides clothing for the needy. Baskets of food are given to those who might not otherwise enjoy a Thanksgiving Dinner. "Christmas knitting" utilizes one of our Midd maidens' more obvious skills to full advantage.

To help finance its activities, Forum sells doughnuts in the women's dorms. Also, Datebooks are sold to alumnae, parents and students — a task in which Forum was aided this year by the Middlebury College Alumnae Association.

FORUM
The predominant religious atmosphere at Middlebury in recent years has been one of resentment, rebellion, and waning coercion. Religious clubs working in this atmosphere attracted a minimum number of adherents, probably because few had sufficient time or zeal to render them eager to seek a more personal means of worship once chapel duty had been performed.

With the abolishment of compulsory chapel, the atmosphere has changed noticeably. While attendance at Chapel and Hillel has waned, the informal clubs, as well as the churches in town, report an increase in active interest.

Religious clubs are functioning with new vigor in the old ways: providing opportunities for service, religious education, and worship. Several additional clubs have been formed, and a Chapel Board was appointed in the fall by Acting Chaplain Redkey (in the absence of Chaplain Scott) "to share with the chaplain the authority and responsibility for the Sunday vespers and the chapel-sponsored lectures and discussions."

With the end of compulsory chapel, a major source of contention between students and administration has been removed from the campus scene.

THE OUTSIDE WORLD

"There's a new argument for you!"

SANE EXECUTIVE BOARD: C. Stein, R. Libman, R. Finklestein, M. Bond, P. Meyer.

In the Debating, International Relations, and political clubs, new methods of thought and expression are developed through the juxtaposition of theory with the current problems of the "world outside." The individual discovers that there are not only two or three, but an infinite number of sides to every question. The never-completed attempt toward the resolution of these conflicting sides and the constant revision of ideas to fit changing situations are processes vital to the development of the mind.
The language clubs, by stimulating a feeling for other cultures and ways of life, promote a form in international understanding based upon spiritual kinship rather than just a comprehension of economic and political issues. Through these clubs one is given the opportunity to apply his learning to his environment in a positive way. They thus serve a fundamental and vital purpose in preparing men and women to be sound citizens not of Academia alone but of the world.

A newspaper's success can be measured in great part by the interest it creates in important issues and problems. The main objective of The Campus this year has been to serve as a sounding board for student opinion in the discussion of major issues on campus. Compulsory ROTC, the value of sororities and nuclear testing are among the controversies which have come under analysis through articles, editorials and letters to the editor. Student interest in these problems, as evidenced by the letters to the editor column, has been great. It is hoped that this response will continue in the future.

Richard Blodgett '62, Editor.
What is time but an indefinable dimension of our existence? The value of a yearbook is that it renders a new perspective of time. Between its covers, the dynamic present of which we are all a product is enclosed as in a capsule. Yet time is not only of the present but of the past and future; it is too fleeting for us now to realize its true significance. We turn to the past to make the present more meaningful; to recall happy experiences hidden in the recesses of memory.

The Kaleidoscope is a graphic presentation of our past. It captures not only a single year; it represents a culmination of our four years at Middlebury. Through it we may relive this portion of our lives. A yearbook points toward the future. It cannot predict it, neither can we. What we do know is that what we have realized at Middlebury is an essential part of us now; in an as yet unforeseen way, it is also part of what we will become.

Caroline Kittell '62, Editor-in-Chief
The eternal fact is that we are alone. We have always been alone; today it is more or less alone than yesterday. The difference in degree has never been discernible. Maybe it doesn't exist. And so we speak; first of all, and compose and paint and write. Some of us excel in these practices. Some get by; some don't try, getting by is all right, but not trying seems wrong. Simple hate can be not having tried, and love is always at least having attempted. Frontiers can be having excelled, but usually it isn't. 99% of the time, it isn't. The 1% is for hope, and meanwhile, we persist in attempt, and if nothing else, learn, and love.

Eric Horsting '63, Editor, Frontiers

Ten times a year a group of Middlebury students and faculty "flick out" under the auspices of Cinema. This heterogeneous group has one belief in common: that the film is more than just entertainment — it is an art. Cinema is devoted to the appreciation of this art. Each program offers an outstanding film followed by spontaneous discussion. Revivals, documentaries, and experimentals form Cinema's series. Infrequent lectures on the mechanics, potentialities, and history of film art give depth to Cinema's showings.

Robert Leverant, '62, President, Cinema
Past years laid the foundation for the "new" WRMC. In 1961-62, WRMC established itself as an integral part of student life at Middlebury. This was not easily accomplished, for the College Radio Service is a compound entity; it not only involves tubes and wire, but people and organization. We found that the job of coordination necessary to produce "the golden sound of Middlebury College Radio" could best be done by three well-defined departments working under the president.

The first of these is the program department, responsible for nearly 60 hours of air-time a week. The program director decides how to divide this time and assigns announcers to each time slot. With the training director, he selects and trains capable people to operate WRMC.

The business department faces the problem of balancing yearly operating costs of over $4,000 with a $2,500 yearly grant from the Student Activities fee.

Ingenuity is most evidenced by the technical department. WRMC, as the technical director would define it, is over 300 tubes, miles of wire, thousands of parts, and millions of headaches.

Keeping radio 750 "Middlebury's most frequently frequented frequency" is not an easy job. It has been done in the past. It is being done now. It is a unique experience for those that try.

Peter Leone, '62 President, WRMC.

A terrace! In Vermont! But when are we going to use it? This was the question that came to the minds and lips of many when the final plans for Redfield Proctor Hall were first made public in 1959. Since then we have learned that our new "Stu-U" has many features of a less controversial nature than "Proctor's Folly." It is, among other things, an arsenal of necessities (shampoo, mail, paper clips), a recreational center, a hub of extracurricular and social activity, a source of employment.

And "Redfield Proctor Hall is a workshop in human relations." Originally conceived as a focal point for freshman class activities, Proctor Hall has expanded its programs to include the entire student body. Early in February, 1961, the Proctor Hall Board of Governors came into being replacing the traditional Freshman Committee. During the remainder of the semester the Board of Governors presented several interesting programs — among them rock 'n' roll dances, a dixieland concert, and two art exhibits.

It is significant that the Board of Governors almost tripled its activities in 1961-1962. Responding to student interest in areas other than the strictly curricular — an interest that showed itself in increased attendance at lectures, plays, and concerts — the Board instituted their "America at the Crossroads" and "Celebrity Series" lectures. The former consisted of weekly talks by various faculty members, each of whom delineated a particular aspect of the modern American scene. "Celebrity Series" brought Robert Frost, Carlos Romulo, Art Buchwald, and Ogden Nash to the campus during the course of the school year.

These programs, and the behind-the-scenes work by interested students that made them possible, combine to make Redfield Proctor Hall of immeasurable benefit to the student body.

Robert Edmund Jones, professor of Drama at Harvard, has said that we must gain an attitude toward theatre and what it is for, not just information about theatre. As the liason between theatre and the student body, Players is a student organization which tries to encourage a receptive attitude toward all forms of drama.

One of the goals of Players is to stimulate creativity by granting opportunities in directing and designing. Players also accepts responsibility for heading crews and maintaining theatre equipment.

Membership in Players is by invitation. To insure that our theatre is a dynamic part of campus life, membership is granted only to those who have indicated a continuing active interest.

Our productions for the past year have been Time of Your Life, J.B., Look Back in Anger, Italian Straw Hat and Playboy of the Western World. Our productions for the coming season are determined in part by campus opinion. Ours is an educational theatre and as such can only live and breathe when all the students realize it as their own.

It is the members of IFC and Pan-Hell who are dealing most directly with the increasing pressure upon the fraternity system to define clearly its role at Middlebury and to provide campus social activity without detracting from the process of higher education.

February, 1962, was the first time in many years that did not see fraternities rushing Freshman men. Effective with the Class of 1965, rushing for men will take place in the first weeks of sophomore year. This policy, according to the Trustees, will give Freshmen a longer period in which to adjust to college and to evaluate fraternities. Although the women's rushing schedule remained the same, all sorority women were challenged this year to demonstrate that their groups were a meaningful part of campus living.

REFLECTIONS

It is a campus commonplace that Robert Frost is Middlebury's poet, the muse of the Breadloaf summer schools. We of the KALEIDOSCOPE had no such notion in mind when we asked Mr. Frost and his publishers to allow us to quote from his poetry in this '62 book. Robert Frost is his own poet; if he is anybody else's, then he is everybody else's. It is Mr. Frost's way of focusing personal, physical, moral and spiritual experience into universally significant poetry that we admire.

Robert Frost has something to say about virtually every area of human experience. He writes of politics and education and the Bomb. He writes of love and death and the "desert places" of our souls. He writes intellectually, with wit; he writes sensuously, with tenderness. In his work there is never a birch without a boy, a road without a man to walk it — people everywhere.

Robert Frost is as much for 1960 generation people as for 1920 generation people. He has the timelessness reserved for artists without an orthodoxy to preach. He never tells us he's found the way; he is much more likely to ask questions than to give answers. With a blend of simplicity and quicksilver elusiveness, he shows us what he has seen, thought, felt. We at Middlebury are no more or less likely than anyone to appreciate Robert Frost's poems, though we should be more likely to try.

Dante

Walk into the sun
Young girl with strong back
The shadows are only mountain-tops
Stretching their mourning stretch,
The trees but shadows gaping for him
Who is dead,
    An orange grey grey-orange man,
    A faded cheek lies on his shoulder
    And Care is wormwood to his mind,
    Climbs like a giant lumber-jack the blue-ringed
    Hill, to counsel with the gods.

Walk into the sun
New girl with torn wings
Icarus could not fly so high
Above the long dark shapes that breezes
Try to bolt, and lofty leaves shake off
In breathlessness.
    In half-step turns he to gaze below
    On what he'd left behind, and seeing,
    Smiled, as did Democritus on Man's Inanities, and smiling, wept. His was
    The Other's face as well.

Run into the light
Sad woman wet-faced and heal
The tiny scars around your eyes and mouth.
Death is no occasion for mourning. Let Rosy-fingered Dawn pick Grief from off your Shoulder, and look toward Mount Olympus.
    The Peak approached he in great
    Strides: the Table laid for talk,
    For drink, for feast. Hands grasped his
    As he reached the Top, massive arms encircling.
    Shouts of laughter shook the Earth, and
    Phoenix heralded new birth.

The 1961 Panther gridders fought their way through a tough schedule to compile an outstanding 5–1–1 record. On the way to their third straight Vermont State Championship, the charges of Head Coach Duke Nelson were slowed only by a loss to perennial spoiler Williams, and a disappointing tie with Bates.

This was a team not expected to equal the record of last years' fine eleven, but one which overcame the loss of personnel from graduation by continuous effort and determination. A lot of credit must go to the co-captains, Fullback Gordie Van Nes and Tackle Jim Shattuck, who played well all season and provided the all important intangible factor of spirit.

The Panthers opened strongly, defeating Wesleyan 20–14 in the opener by a determined scoring drive in the last seconds of play. The Blue next outfought a stubborn Worcester Tech team 6–2, scoring on a punt blocked by Al Ross and recovered in the end zone by Gil Owren. Homecoming brought a powerful Williams team to Middlebury, and the Panthers' first loss. Williams quickly drove to two touchdowns, and that was the only scoring of the day. The contest was even from then on and Williams emerged a 12–0 victor. The following week was another disappointment as an outplayed Bates team capitalized on a pass interference penalty and tied the surprised Panthers in the last twenty seconds of play. Middlebury next rolled over a spirited but outgunned R. P. I. eleven in preparation for the State Series.

On a rainy day in Northfield, the gridders spotted the Cadets of Norwich two early touchdowns, then came roaring back behind the field-generalship of Claflin, the pass-catching of Owren, and the running of Holmes and Van Nes. Van Nes knotted the score at 12–12 with less than two minutes remaining. Chris Morse made good his place-kick conversion, and Middlebury won 13–12.

U. V. M., considered by most to be the big game of every year, was indeed the Panthers' best effort. Outweighed by fifteen pounds a man, Middlebury's line, led by Jim Shattuck and Gil Owren, contained the Catamounts on defense and fought through them on offense to secure a 27–6 upset. The turning point of the game came when Al Ross, alert as usual, fell on a kickoff in the end zone following Midd's first score. It was the second score for the Panthers in less than a minute, and from that moment the fired-up Panthers could not be stopped.

When the yards were hard to get, there was always Van Nes.
Gordie Van Nes and Jim Shattuck, 1961 co-captains, have played their last game. Next fall the team will look to Al Ross and Craig Stewart for leadership. The Class of 1962, with its veterans, will be missed next year, but those who will again wear the panther uniform accept the loss. Football teams are made anew each fall, and next September the story will unfold once more.

The reason for it all
The 1961 Season was a well-deserved success for the Middlebury soccer team. Hampered by the lack of a consistent high-scorer in its first Hultgreen-less season, Coach Morrone’s group produced a superb team effort in working its way to a 6–1–1 regular season record. Like all Morrone teams, this one was in excellent physical condition and capable of maximum exertion throughout every game.

To single out stars or attribute the team’s success to individuals would be impossible, because the real star was teamwork. Teamwork, that elusive, yet critical ingredient that makes an aggregation a unit. This team had it — had it to spare. Every man on both forward lines scored at least once, and, in a sense, all were high scorers.

For the first seven games of its eight-game schedule, it looked as if the Panthers could go undefeated. They had tied perennially powerful M.I.T. and beaten an excellent R.P.I. team. Coast Guard, always strong, had also fallen. Norwich put up good defense for one half, then toppled 4–0 in front of a second-half Middlebury surge. Going into the season’s finale against Dartmouth, Middlebury was riding the crest of four consecutive victories.

Dartmouth was good; the Green played in a bigger league against stiffer competition. They had lost, but only to teams like Harvard and Williams, the acknowledged elite of New England soccer. The Panthers were outclassed, but not outfought, and were beaten 2–1.

The season, however, had been very successful, and was capped by an invitation to the Eastern Small College Soccer Championships, held in New York during Thanksgiving vacation. Middlebury took third place out of the four participating schools, losing in the first round 1–4 to Baltimore, the eventual champion, and defeating C. W. Post 2–1 in the consolation match.

Captain Dennie Williams, Pete Askin, George Rubottom, Pete Johnson, Ralph Ellis, George Pransky, Doug Kirkwood, and Jim Bernene are leaving, and will be missed. But if this year’s spirit and attitude remain, next year should be equally successful.

The 1961-62 season was basically a rebuilding period; yet the Middlebury Hockey Team emerged with a creditable 11—9—2 record. Throughout the season the icemen were plagued by the lack of a well-balanced scoring attack, and were forced to rely heavily on the nation’s leading scorer, Dates Fryberger. This fact coupled with the team’s inexperience prevented a record similar to last year’s fine 19—2 record.

The season opened on a bright note as we defeated College Militaire Royale of Canada 3—1. The next five games, however, saw the Blue go winless, tying CMR in a return match, and losing to Princeton, Dartmouth, RPI, and St. Lawrence, by sizeable margins. The only bright spot over this stretch was the play of Fryberger and defenseman Weekes.

Journeying to the north, the Panthers won impressively over Carleton of Ottawa and Macdonald, while losing to Bishops; thus bringing the season record to 3—5—1. The Ivy League competition proved too much as we dropped a close 1—3 decision to Yale. After this setback the icemen pushed themselves up and reeled off five straight wins. Hamilton fell first by a 5—1 score, as Dates led the way with four goals. After a thrilling win over the cadets of Norwich, “Duke” Nelson’s skaters pulled upsets against Northeastern, Bowdoin, and Dartmouth. The 10—5 victory over the Indians, avenging an earlier 3—1 defeat, showed the improvement that marked the team’s progress through the season. Dates again paved the way with 5 goals, while the second line of John Flynn, Roger Lewandowski, and Barry White gave the performance its necessary depth.

In the most exciting game of the year, the Blue held Army to a 3—3 tie in overtime, as Germond scored on the cadet goalie with but ten seconds remaining. Williams proved to be a disastrous trip as the Ephmen routed the Panthers 12—5. The high point of the season came two nights later when the visiting Colgate club brought their 15—5 record to the arena, and lost 4—3 in a tense contest.

The Blue closed out the season splitting the remaining four games with wins over Hamilton and Amherst, and losses to Norwich and Colgate. Amherst fell 13—0 during Carnival as Rick Coy scored his first three goals of the year and Dates added five. The tempo of the game can be seen in the 71 saves made by the Amherst goalie. Hamilton was the final victory of the season as the Panthers closed out a fairly successful campaign.

The season saw the development of a unified team from the inexperience and confusion that marked the early part of the schedule. Lines and defensemen were changed and rechanged until the most effective combination was reached. As any successful team performance, the hockey team's record was the result of group effort. But it is hard not to mention the performance of a few individuals who, by either extra effort or extra ability, carried more than their share of the weight. Dates Fryberger scored 56 goals to provide the great bulk of our scoring threat. John Weekes emerged as a successful defenseman. Eddie Germond, making the difficult transformation from line to defense, performed consistently well, often skating 50 minutes a game. Roger Lewandowski and Barry White showed more confidence and aggressiveness than last year, and were our principal scorers behind Dates. It was gaining confidence and aggressiveness that, more than anything else, was responsible for the team's steady improvement. The hockey Panthers first had to accept their immense losses due to the graduation of over half of the 60-61 team. With this accomplished, they began to work their hardest and with what they had, and were on their way to a successful season.
Dates Fryberger had 56 goals, 13 assists, for a total of 69 points. He was first in the nation in goals, third in the East in points.

This year's ski season was labeled a rebuilding year by Coach Bobo Sheehan, and that it was. In retrospect, however, it was much more successful than is usually connoted by that term.

Defending champion at every carnival in the East, Middlebury had a dismal start by finishing last at Williams in a field of eight schools. The undoing of our first outing was due to a freak total disqualification in the slalom, resulting in a score of zero in the Alpine Combined. This cancelled our good showing in the Nordic events, and placed us wholly out of contention.
The next week at Dartmouth saw a great improvement as the Alpine squad redeemed itself with a win in the slalom and a second in the downhill. Again the Nordic team gave an excellent showing and Middlebury was barely second to Dartmouth with Pete Swallow capturing the Skimeister title for overall performance.

Our only Carnival win followed at St. Lawrence. A 1-2-3 sweep in the Giant Slalom run instead of a downhill, and winning performances in Cross-Country and the jump led to a runaway win over an under represented Dartmouth squad.

Next was our home show, the Middlebury Carnival. The downhill saw Middlebury third to lightning-waxed Dartmouth and U.V.M. That afternoon the Cross-Country team won handily after a Dartmouth runner was disqualified. Going into the slalom on a snowy Saturday morning, Middlebury was close behind leading Dartmouth. The Indians won this event by a slight margin, expanding barely their lead. The jump was held Sunday morning, with Middlebury still very much in contention. Once again, however, Dartmouth edged Middlebury. The Panthers, however, won the Nordic Combined event, and pulled within .7 of a point of victorious Dartmouth.

At the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships, Dartmouth again asserted its narrow superiority. Dave Honcom won the Cross-Country, with Captain Spencer Jackson finishing third. Once again our strong point was the Nordic squad, as they posted a first in the Cross-Country and jump. The Alpine team did not fare so well finishing fourth in the downhill and second in the slalom.

Greatly reduced in strength from last year by graduation and leaves of absence for international competition, the skiers nevertheless had some bright hours and performances.

Basketball 1961-62 was another lean year for Stub Mackey’s court men; the leanest yet, as the Panthers could not post a win all season. To be sure, the quality of Middlebury basketball players is not as poor as an 0–17 won-lost record would indicate. Any emphasis received by basketball at Midd must first filter through skiing and hockey. Consequently, Middlebury seldom if ever draws a good basketball prospect. Most of our Middlebury basketball players are all-round athletes, competing against the more often than not recruited specialists of other schools. It is no wonder, then, that we have been less strong than our opponents. A shallow bench often was unable to continue the good first-half work of the starting five, and many of our margins of loss developed as our scoring energy waned with the clock. This was not due to a lack of conditioning, but more to the effort needed to remain in contention in the early quarters. A team lacking any pretense of height is forced to rely on a fast-break offense, and a thin team relying on a fast-break offense tires quickly—tires fatally. More than once, the team performed well against an opponent’s starting lineup, only to be outrun by a fresh second unit late in the game. The desire was there in respectable portion, but the bodies could not sustain the pace long enough. This was the story of the season.

The team should be commended for its perseverance. An early optimism gradually changed to grim determination, but never to apathy. The later games were just as hard fought as the first. A team forced to play over its head, both figuratively and literally, is under a severe handicap morale-wise. This obstacle the team overcame. As a dim season got dark, and a dark season darker, the efforts of a constant few shone more brightly in contrast. Craig Stewart and Wally Lucas were consistent scorers, Captain Speedy Jackson chiefly gathered our few rebounds, while Dick Maine and Cecil Forster were playmakers. The record, then, is not the full story. The numbers imply a condition of apathy and impotence that did not really exist. Teamwork and sportsmanship, two of the less-emphasized but more important aspects of sport, were present as some compensation.

"But bid life seize the present?
It lives less in the present
Than in the future always,
And less in both together
Than in the past. The present
Is too much for the senses,
Too crowding, too confusing —
Too present to imagine."

ROBERT FROST
